

THE FIFTH ANNUAL NATIONAL ARAB AMERICAN
SERVICE DAY

Serving Communities, Connecting People

SATURDAY, MAY 16, 2009

What is National Arab American Service Day?

On May 16, 2009, community service projects will take place across the country. The National Arab American Service Day is an annual project organized by the National Network for Arab American Communities. The mission of the National Arab American Service Day is to foster and encourage volunteerism and service among diverse communities, while highlighting Arab Americans' commitment to serving their local communities.

The National Network for Arab American Communities is dedicated to further promoting this annual event as more Arab Americans and non-Arabs come together around a common vision of service and volunteerism. We would welcome your support of the National Network for Arab American Communities as we work together to strengthen our communities, build civic participation in our neighborhoods, and form a foundation for the future.

The 2009 National Arab American Service Day will be held in the following cities:

Anaheim, CA
Astoria, NY
Atlanta, GA
Boston, MA
Brooklyn, NY
Bridgeview, IL

The National Network for Arab American Communities (NNAAC) is a network of local independent Arab American community-based organizations. The Network's primary mission is the development of institutions that can meet the needs and represent the concerns of Arab Americans locally, while collectively addressing these concerns nationally.

The network supports the development of financially strong and effectively managed community based organizations through a broad range of programs. By leveraging the collective efforts of its members, the network is able to improve the lives of local communities, and empower the Arab American community on a national level.

The network is a project of the Arab Community Center for Economic and Social Services and is housed in the National Outreach Department.
